B*lack Earth Wisdom* is a tapestry of voices and would not have been born without the generosity and trust of the interviewees and contributors. May this book honor and amplify your wisdom.

The entire manuscript came together in just four winter months of disciplined focus. This feat was made possible by the tireless support of research assistant Clara AgborTabi, content editor and data organizer

Neshima Vitale-Penniman, and copyeditor Elizabeth Henderson. I offer my thanks to the Soul Fire Farm team and family—Jonah, Naima, Neshima, Emet, Brooke, Kai, Ria, Ife, Cheryl, Azuré, Shay, Danielle, Hillary, Briana—for holding down our sacred collective work and encouraging me during the writing process.

I offer humble gratitude to the Mohican Nation for their stewardship over millennia of these lands upon which I live and work. The animals, plants, fungi, waterways, and minerals of this land are the beings who spoke this book into existence. To my spiritual teachers, Awise Abimbola, Awo Agboola, Manye Maku, Awo Onigbonna, Iya Ajisebo Abimbola, Jun San, and Rev. Adele Smith-Penniman, I salute you and say “Modem-yoo! Aboru Aboye Abosise!”

I give thanks to all those who believed in the seed of the idea and nourished it with fertile compost. Thank you to sibling B. Anderson for founding the Black Earth Wisdom archive and sharing the name with this book. Thank you to Jennifer Baker and the Amistad team for launching this volume into the world. Thank you to the Kalliopeia Foundation for funding the interview and writing process.

Mother Earth, I offer gratitude for your generous patience with me and all of humanity as we remember how to listen. May the words and songs of our mouths, the meditations of our hearts, and the work of our hands be acceptable to you.
